

Making Mobile Augmented Reality Applications Accessible

Jaylin Herskovitz^{1,2}, Jason Wu^{1,3}, Samuel White¹, Amy Pavel¹, Gabriel Reyes¹, Anhong Guo^{2,3}, and Jeffrey P. Bigham¹

¹Apple, ²University of Michigan, ³Carnegie Mellon University

IKEA Place

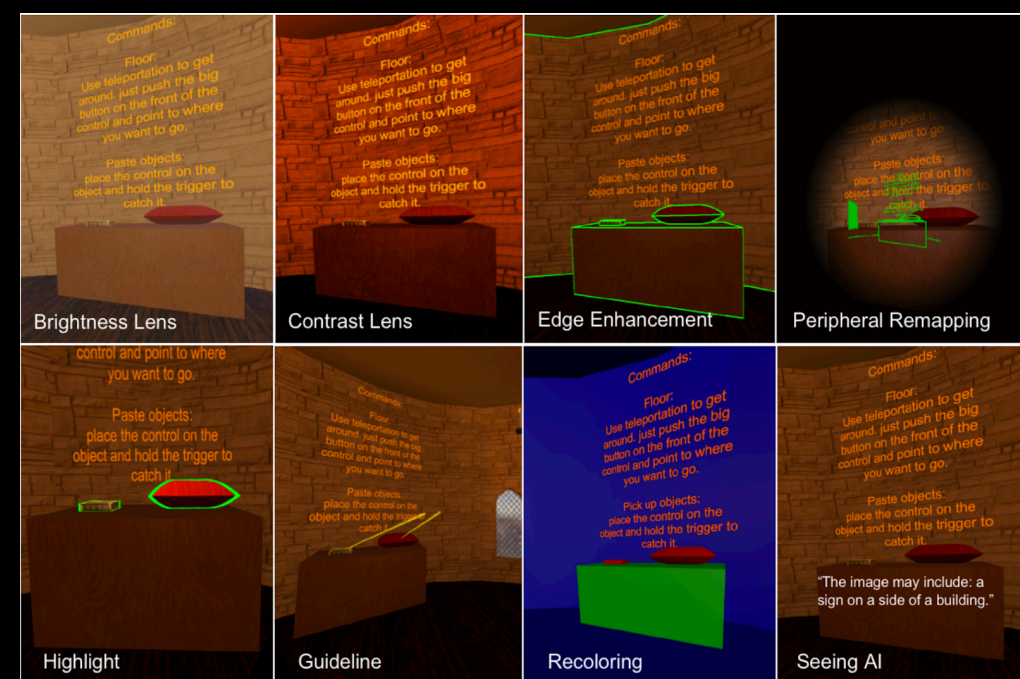

Statue of Liberty

Background

VR Accessibility

SeeingVR

(Zhao et al., CHI 2019)

Canetroller

(Zhao et al., CHI 2018)

AR as an Assistive Tool

VizLens

(Guo et al., UIST 2016)

NavCog3

(Sato et al., ASSETS 2017)

Making Augmented Reality Apps Accessible

Analysis of existing mobile AR apps

Develop accessible prototypes

Evaluate with blind participants

Analysis of Existing iOS Mobile AR Apps

105 Total AR Apps

Design Space of AR Interactions

Establishing
Physical / Virtual
Correspondence

Ex: Scanning the environment to establish tracking

Creating Virtual
Content

Ex: Placing a virtual object on a physical surface

Observing
AR Content

Transforming Virtual
Content

Activating
Virtual
Content

Prototyping Accessible Alternatives

Establishing
Physical / Virtual
Correspondence

Scanning

Creating Virtual
Content

Camera-based Placement

Guided Placement

Observing
AR Content

Camera-based Search

Guided
Search

Establishing Physical / Virtual
Correspondence

Creating Virtual
Content

Camera-based Placement

Creating Virtual Content

Guided
Placement

Where would you like to place the object?

On the floor

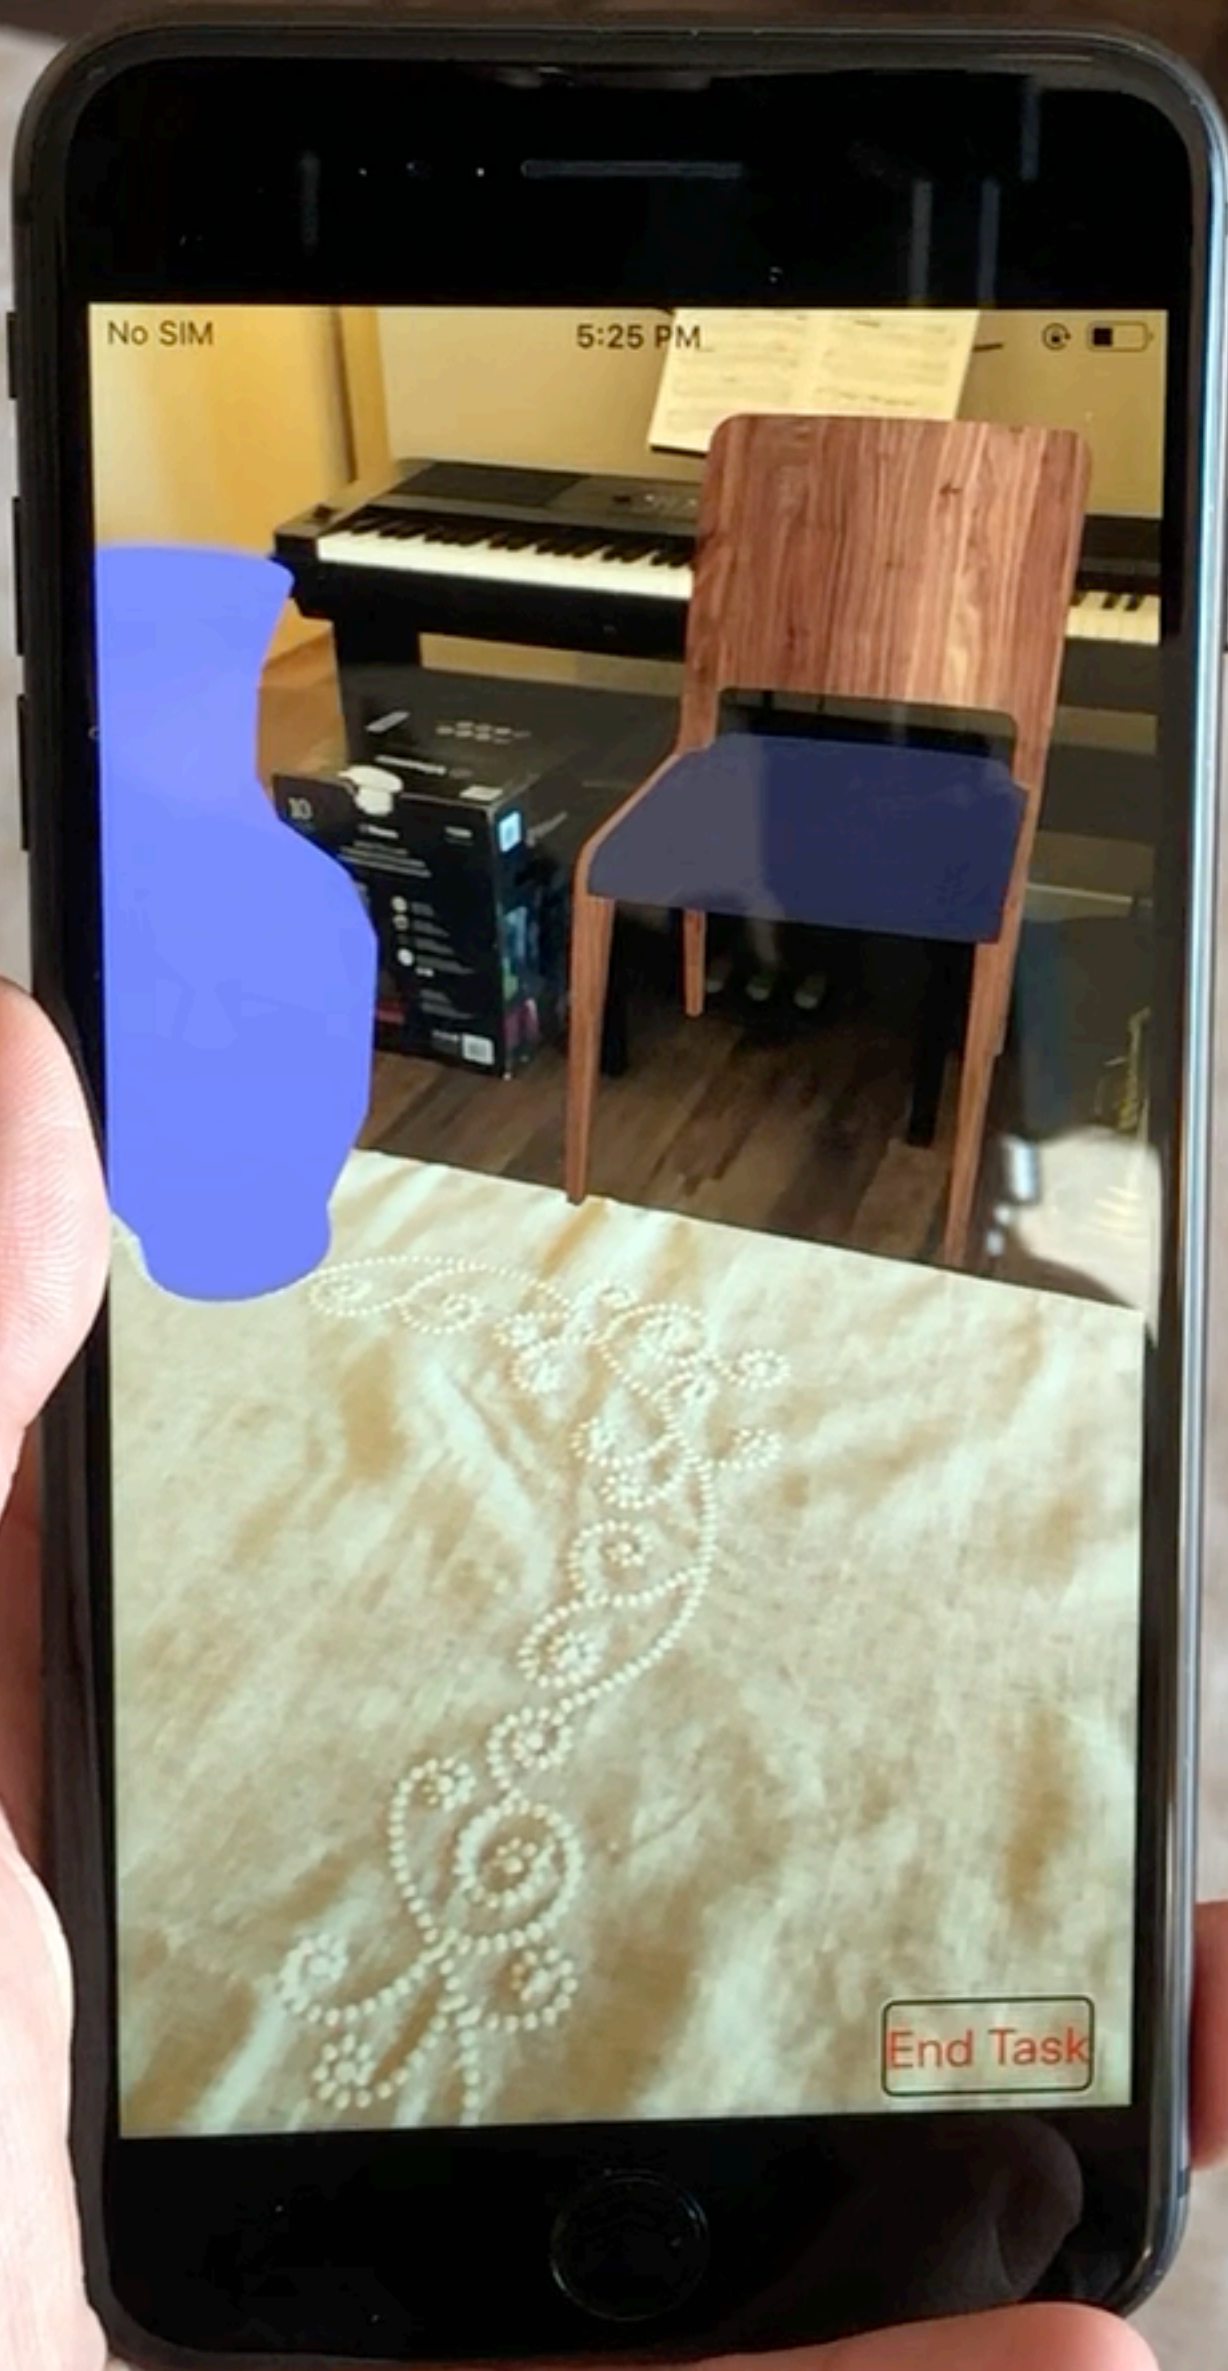

On a table

the chair against the wall the whiteboard.

Observing
AR Content

Camera-based Search

Observing
AR Content

Guided
Search

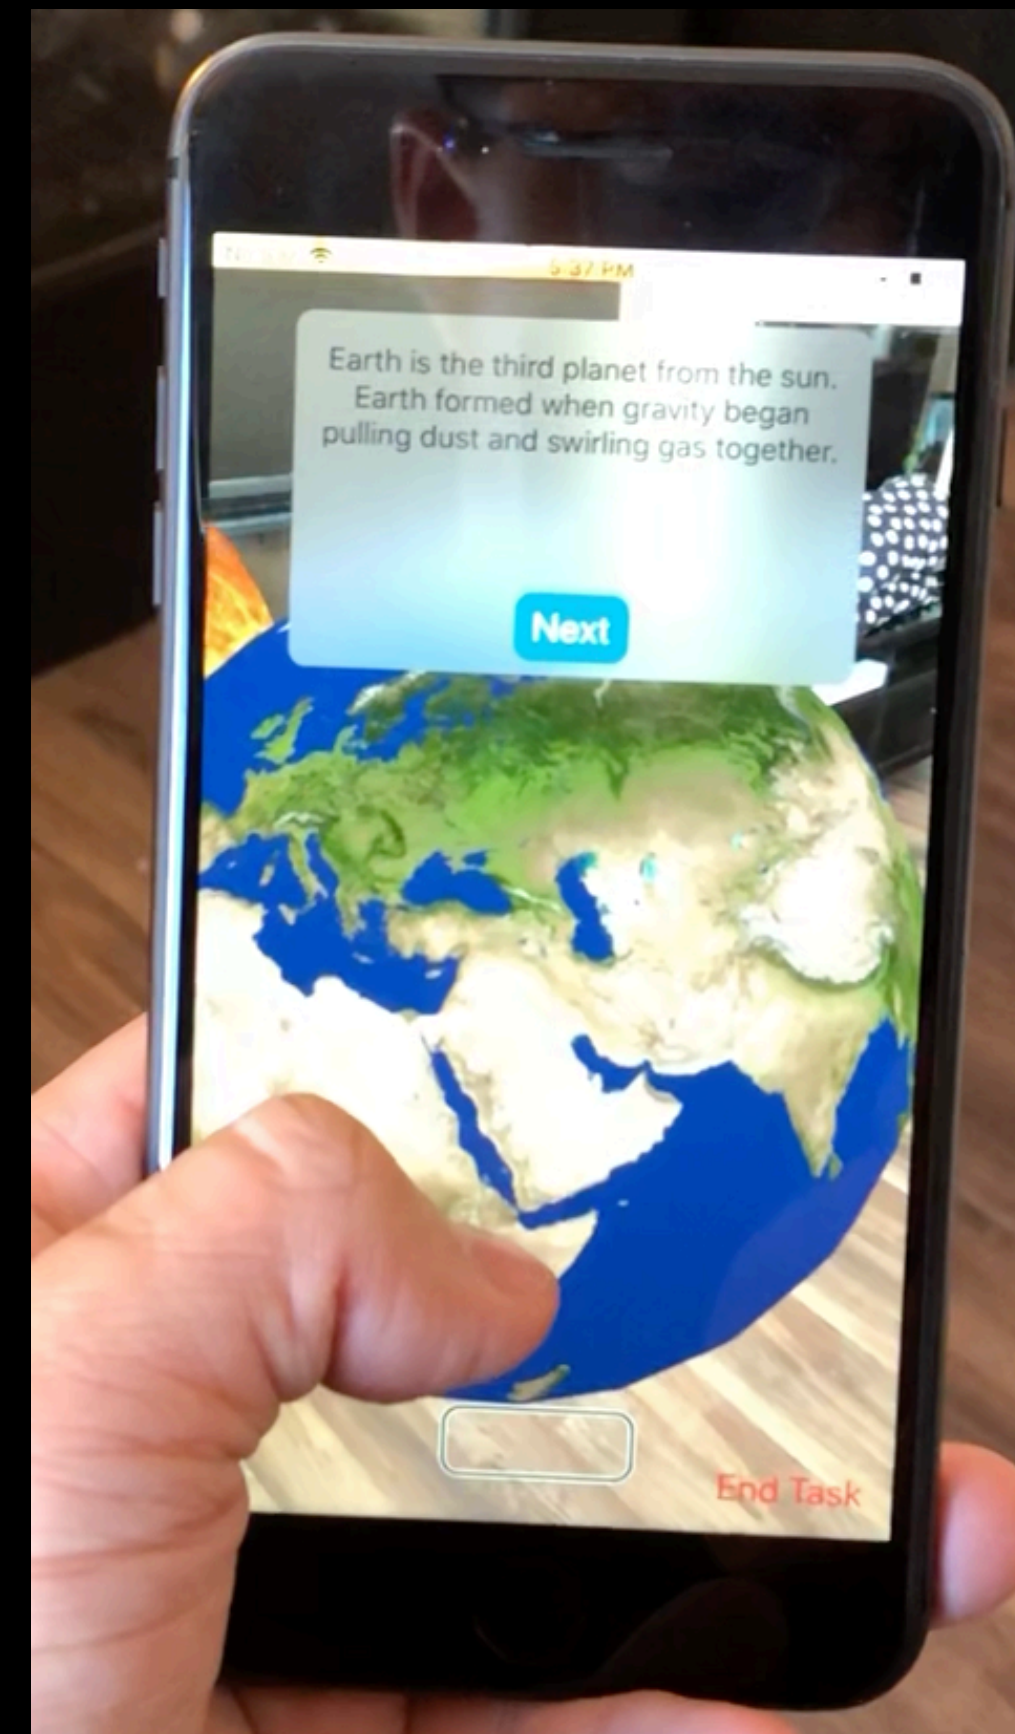

Accessible AR Experiences

Furniture App

Solar System App

Evaluation

User study with 10 participants (8 completely blind, 2 low vision)

Component Tasks

Scanning
Task

Object
Placement Task

Object
Search Task

Full Apps

Open-Ended Use

Results

Camera-based Placement

Guided
Placement

Camera-based Search

Guided Search

Results

Camera-based Placement

Guided
Placement

Camera-based Search

Guided Search

Results

We need to:

- Provide continuous and meaningful feedback
- Mix virtual and physical descriptions
 - Guidance relative to physical landmarks
 - Safety in navigation
 - Better descriptions of content

Limitations and Future Work

- Involve visually impaired people in the design process
- Other modalities: spatial audio, haptics
- Advance semantic understanding of scene

Key Takeaways

- AR can be made accessible to blind users
- Provide continuous and meaningful feedback
- Mix virtual and physical descriptions

